N° 01 · I DON'T KNOW

N° 01 — TOLD TO ADMIT IT

...OR IT SIMPLY REFUSES TO ANSWER.

9/10

"I don't know." Honest, and useless to a customer.

Only the documents can fix the content.

`01-returns-and-refunds#4` `02-delivery#1` `01-returns-and-refunds#2`

First answer cited ~~`02-delivery#5`~~

Not one of the 3 passages. Refused by code, asked again.

Your parcel is considered late since it hasn't arrived 2 days after its estimated delivery date. You can cancel the order from your order history and receive a full refund, including the delivery cost, within 5 business days.

wrong answers out of 30, in each run

"Taught by its third example."

Zero-shot's misses were about form, not retrieval: a reply in French to an English question, an "I don't know" flagged answerable. Few-shot's examples teach both.

N° 04 — A TAMPERED SELLER PAGE

THE PROMPT STOPS THE LIE.

14/15

Plain prompt: the 365-day lie was sent 0/15

Our prompt: policies from the help centre only

Our prompt keeps policies to the help centre: the seller's lie never reached a customer. Our code check adds a second barrier: no e-mail or link the help centre doesn't publish.

N° 04 — WHAT WE DISCLOSE

ONE SCORING FIX, DISCLOSED.

A correct answer missed our fact list. We widened it and re-scored: 2 answers changed, none edited.

OUR WEAKEST PART
